If he has a far away look these days, don't worry, ladies, the master may be dreaming of a "dear" but it is probably the kind that looks better on the table than at it. These are the days when forest and stream call to Albertans in accents clar and loud. If the little woman has any doubts about your intentions, why not take her with you? That's what Fred Greely of Madison, Wis., did, shown above with his wife looking over a brace of pheasants he shot. He is one of the numerous American visitors attracted to Canada by this country's relatively plentiful game.

Those Precious Teeth

By the time your baby is 30 months old he will have acquired most, if not all, of his first set of teeth. These 20 teeth are mighty precious possessions and should be protected by frequent brushings and regular visits to the dentist. Failure to take care of these foundation teeth may result in crooked, irregular permanent teeth and endless dental troubles in later years.

Norfolk Isle To Be Tourist Mecca

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Far out in the blue Pacific, a spot of England in a sub-tropical frame is facing an avalanche of modernity that promises to add another chapter to an unusual past.

Norfolk Island, which is now administered by Australia and scheduled soon to receive a face-lifting for tourist development, was originally settled as a British penal colony, notes the National Geographic Society. Later it became a refuge for descendants of the famed mutineers of the Bounty. Its older settlers still cling to inherited customs, clothes and recipes of old England.

To transform Norfolk from a lotus-eating paradise into a bustling resort, the Australian government is reported to be planning an initial investment of $300,000. The island itself has basic advantages of mild, healthful climate, rich soil, and such scenic effects as sheer cliffs dropping into a churning sea, and tall pines etched against the sky.

NO INCOME TAX

More than 700 people now live on Norfolk Island. A thousand miles northeast of Sydney, Australia, and about half that distance northwest of New Zealand, their small homeland of five miles by three provides a lavish larder.

Fish swarm in the surrounding waters, and vegetables and fruits, including bananas, oranges, lemons, figs, pineapples, and passion fruit, grow abundantly. No income tax disturbs Norfolk's sylvan meditations. No high cost of living or expensive amusements, beyond a weekly movie, require excessive labor. The chief responsibility is that men between 21 and 55 must contribute nine days' labor a year, or pay roughly $10 tax.

It was the towering pines of once-inhabited Norfolk that first attracted England's interest after the island was discovered in 1774 by Captain Cook. It was thought the timber would be valuable in masts for British sailing ships, and that the flax growing wild in the valleys could serve for canvas. Knots in the pines, however, made this wood inferior and the flax was too low in quality and quantity.

CONVICTS FED CONVICTS

So Norfolk became, because of its fertility, a British convict station which was used to produce grain to supply other Pacific penal colonies. In 1793 the island's yield was 12,000 bushels of wheat and 50 tons of potatoes. From the quarries came sombre grey stone for the prisons and barracks whose ruins are still grim reminders of Norfolks past.

In 1856, after the break-up of the penal establishments, a new life began. From Pitcairn, 3,750 miles to the east, the British government transferred about 190 settlers. Pitcairn Island was no longer productive enough to support the growing colony which had been founded years before by the survivors of the Bounty and their Tahitian wives.

The new site was a garden compared with wild, rugged Pitcairn, and Norfolk's buildings and extensive livestock were an extra bonus. But about 40 of the settlers eventually grew homesick and returned to their former island.

The rest remained on Norfolk, keeping British tradition alive in their Christmas pudding and Sunday church services, treasuring their fading horsehair furniture and wall-hung warming pans amid scenes of tropical South Sea color.

STRIKE VOTE CALLED IN C.G.E. PLANTS

Peterboro workers, after a brief "holiday," are back on job to permit re-opening negotiations.

Value of Seaweed As Food

Seaweed is being used more and more as both a food, and for animal fodder. Its value to mankind was stressed recently by a leading United Kingdom botanic expert, Professor Newton, speaking to an audience of scientists at the British Association conference. The direction which future work and research in developing this rich, natural source of vitamins should take, was discussed.

Professor Newton said that recent experiments have shown the common brown seaweeds to be particularly rich in vitamins. A large field of work awaited biochemists in extracting these, and presenting them in palatable, easily digested form, for human consumption.

Fatal Fascination

Matches and cigarette lighters intrigue children. They are fascinated by any type of fire—a flame gives them a thrill. Child experts point out that this fascination for fire must be carefully guided and controlled until the child is old enough to appreciate the dangers associated with stoves, furnaces and other types of flame.

YOUR FARM and FARMSTEAD

By L. H. PEACOCK

SEED GERMINATION TEST ON THE FARM

1. Select a truly representative average sample of cleaned seed from the bin.

2. Mix the sample thoroughly to have an even distribution of large and small kernels just as they come.

3. Count out two lots of exactly 100 seeds each, being sure to take the large and small kernels just as they come.

4. For germinating, the seeds may be placed between two pieces of blotting paper, which should be kept moist and covered with an inverted dinner plate.

5. For average farm conditions it may be preferable to sow seeds in a can, about 4 inches across.

6. Fill can to about one inch from the top with soil. Sandy soil is best if available.

7. Soil should be moist, but not too wet, especially if it is heavy clay.

8. Sprinkle seeds evenly on top using one can for each of the two lots of 100 seeds.

9. Cover with about one-half inch of loose moist soil.

10. Keep at ordinary room temperature, between 60 and 70 degrees, for about ten days, being sure that the cans are not too near a cold window or the stove.

11. If top soil becomes dry sprinkle lightly with water but do not soak.

12. Count the strong shoots at the end of 10 days.

13. The number of strong shoots from the 100 seeds sown will represent the approximate percentage germination.

14. Seed germination over 85 per cent is good; between 75 and 85, medium; 65 to 75 fair; and below 65 is unsatisfactory for seed.

RHINITIS IN SWINE

Although rhinitis in swine is not nearly as prevalent in Alberta as it was four or five years ago, there are still sufficient cases to warrant care on the part of all swine producers. Dr. G. S. Wilton, Veterinary Pathologist, Alberta Department of Agriculture, advises that while most outbreaks occur on poorly kept farms, the disease has appeared on premises where the principles of sanitation were being practiced to the utmost of the owners ability. There is strong evidence that rhinitis is brought into many herds by the introduction of carrier pigs, usually as additions to the breeding stock. Research carried out by the Ontario Veterinary College has proved that swine rhinitis is transmissible. This usually occurs when the young pigs are nursing an infected sow or living on infected premises.

In view of this danger, the best means of preventing rhinitis from making its appearance in a healthy herd is to use the greatest care in purchasing feeders and breeding stock, says Dr. Wildton. It is wise to make certain that there is no evidence of the disease on the premises from which additions are made. Although all breeds of swine are susceptible to the disease, short nosed pigs are more likely to be affected due to the conformation of the nose and head.

Prior to placement of a new herd in a piggery, the pen should be disinfected with the aid of a lye solution. This should be followed with a spray containing a disinfectant—either one of the ordinary coal tar products, or one of the newer synthetic ammonium chlorides.

In herds where rhinitis is already present the affected swine should be fed on slop feed and marketed as soon as possible. A tablespoon of standardized fish oil per pig daily should be provided and the protein supplement of milk increased as compared with amounts required by healthy stock. Pigs from litters where rhinitis is present are potential carriers, no matter how halthy they may appear.

As the nursing pig is the most susceptible, the sows should be farrowed when possible in clean colony houses placed on new pasture. The pigs can then be returned to the disinfected piggery at 3 or 4 months of age for finishing or this can be done on pasture, weather permitting.

One-Plow Tractors Popular On Farm

In the last four years, there has been an increase in the number of one-plow tractors being used on farms. In 1947 about 900 were sold in Canada as compared with over 5,000 in 1948. This increase can be attributed to the low initial cost and the fact that many of the field operations can be performed by the one-plow tractor and its equipment.

Although the one-plow tractor costs approximately one-half as much as the two-plow tractor, and will normally accomplish at least half the amount of work, the new cost per drawbar horse power is usually 25 per cent greater for the one-plow tractor than for large tractors. It has been estimated that a one-plow tractor will plow an acre of land for about $4 while the two-plow tractor will do an acre for about $3.50. This higher cost for the one-plow tractor is partly due to the increased labor cost, since one man can do approximately half as much with a one-plow tractor as with the two-plow tractor. These costs are based on operations under average field conditions. The above figures indicate that the one-plow tractor involves less investment but does not necessarily result in a reduced cost per acre when compared with the larger tractors, says Allan Magee, Field Husbandry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The complementary mounted implements available are usually well designed and cost less than similar equipment for larger tractors.

Many farms are using a one-plow tractor in place of two or three horses. This size of tractor will haul most two horse equipment under normal field conditions. In addition, the tractor will supply belt power for various operations.

Large farms that use two tractors or more, may find the one-plow tractor useful, as it will do many of the lighter jobs which are always numerous on a large farm.

When operating a one-plow tractor it should not be overloaded. For example, some operators endeavor to draw a 5-foot tandem disc harrow, and greatly overload the tractor which may be designed to pull a 5-foot single disc. This results in reduced efficiency and dissatisfaction.

These few observations leave little doubt as to why the one-plow tractor has become popular. It is really a small unit as versatile as the large tractors.

Scotland's Industry Grows

Exporting A Birthright

In view of the fact that Premier Manning announced, following the special session of the legislature last summer, that he and his cabinet were not yet prepared to permit the export of natural gas, one cannot help wondering why all the feverish activity on the part of companies interested in pipelines, for transporting our gas out of the province.

During that session, Hugh John MacDonald, Liberal member from Calgary, analyzing figures contained in the Dinning Commission's Report on Alberta's natural gas reserves pointed out that, on the basis of that report, there were only sufficient reserves—in addition to those which might properly be earmarked for the use of Alberta consumers—to service the export market for eight years.

Since then it has been rumored that recent drilling operations have added another two trillion cubic feet to the commission's estimate of 4.26 trillion in Alberta's known reserves. These additions would service the export pipelines for another 20 years at present consumption estimates.

These astronomical figures can be misleading. In Texas the known reserves are estimated at 90 trillion cubic feet, and they are being depleted at a rapid rate. California has an estimated 10.2 trillion feet but apparently doesn't feel that they have any to spare to serve cities in the northwestern United States which are closer to them than to the Alberta supplies.

In Albera, too, centres like Calgary are wondering where their future supplies are to come from. Turner Valley has been almost exhausted and it is expected that within the next five years, at present rates of withdrawal, it will be necessary for the Canadian Western Natural Gas Company, which serves Calgary, Lethbridge and other points in Southern Alberta, to look for new sources of supply.

We feel that the provincial government, before permitting export, should consider Alberta's requirements not only on the basis of present consumption, but should make every effort to see that as much industry as possible be invited and encouraged to come to Alberta to use our gas here. We have in mind not only that natural gas is important as a cheap fuel and power source, but is even more important and valuable as a chemical. This last item is particularly important when we remember that it is only within the last few years that chemists and physicists have begun to explore the possible uses of natural gas in the new synthetics industries.

It would be well if the provincial authorities would read carefully the story of Esau, who traded his birthright for a mess of pottage, before they make any further decisions in the important question.

NATIONAL CLUB WEEK

Next Thursday night, November 10th, the ten Farm Young People who have been chosen provincial champions in the Alberta Junior Farm and Home Clubs will leave Edmonton for the national contests of Boys' and Girls' Farm Clubs held during the Toronto Winter Fair.

These fortunate people are: George Brebner and Leslie Miller, of Spruce Grove Wheat Club; Ross Gould and Allan Wilson of Camrose Junior Beef Club, and Elvin Knudslien and Brian Westmancoat from Ryley Dairy Calf Club.

Arlene Nelson and Dorothy Olsen from Veteran Clothing Club; and Dolores Cutrath and Gwen Koefoed of Cluny Food Clubs.

Arriving in Toronto Sunday morning, the club party will be conducted on a two-hour tour of Toronto, during the afternoon. Sunday evening there will be a social period so that the club members from the different provinces will become better acquainted.

Monday they compete in the National Judging Competition to select the Dominion Champion teams in the clothing, food, dairy, beef and grain projects.

The week's activities include visits to the Royal Winter Fair, educational tours, and trips to Niagara Falls, Hamilton and Ottawa.

One of the highlights of National Club Week will be the visit to Government House, Ottawa, where the club members will be received by Lord and Lady Alexander.

Not only are these young Albertans receiving the highest honor possible in Junior Farm and Home Club week, but they will come back with a broader vision of Canada and Canadian farm life.

Youth Hitch-Hiked Across Canada Twice

Having escaped from Edmonton South Side Boys' Home last spring, a 16-year-old youth has been returned to Alberta welfare officials from Windsor, Ontario.

With ambitions to be a truck driver, and an itchy foot, the lad hitched-hiked his way twice across Canada. First he went as far as Halifax, N.S., then made his way back again, going as far north as the Yukon. Later he visited Toronto and finally was picked up by Windsor police for questioning.

He comes formerly from Therien, Alta.

Dear Editor

"GOPHER STEW"

Before me is a letter dated Oct. 13th, 1949, from the Department of Agriculture, Athabasca, which brought to mind another era: "The Good Old Hungry Thirties."

Remember?

In those good old days, municipal councillors and government officials used gophers as a way of oppressing the poor, by suggesting that gophers make "good stew." A real source of economy to the government, no doubt.

But alas! how times have changed in 1949. Gophers are now a real excuse for the municipality and agriculture department to try and take over the operation and maintainence of a farm belonging to a "war veteran," causing a greater source of oppression.

In this agricultural letter gophers are mentioned as often as weeds and given the prominence of being spelt with a capital "G."

So beware ratepayers, of this vast northern district, when the "Hungry Fifties" creep in and the government has control of ALL the land and GOPHERS and their signs read:

"Government land, no trespassing." What then will we do for "Gopher Stew?"

Peace For Remembrance

On November 11, 1918, World War I ended.

More than the fact two days would have to be set aside (VE and VJ days) to commemorate the end of World War II dictated preservation of November 11 as "Armistice Day." It had become firmly entrenched as a day of remembrance in Canada.

The sale of Canadian Legion poppies also serves as an annual call to pay tribute to the memory of the fallen but also reminds that the disabled living have not been forgotten.

It seems to us that another thought might be added to the significance of the day. It should be a day when we stop and think hard about the horrors and penalties of war and rededicate our determination to preserve the peace. This is not suggested in the sense that it become a pius wish, nor even a silent prayer, but that it be a day when we fully consider action which may be taken to prevent war.

As long as the individual is indifferent to peace or war there will be war. It is not simply a question of the people expressing their desire for peace. Winning the peace requires just as much strategy and aggressive action as any war campaign. Much of the attraction of war in the past has been that it is active while peace is a passive idea.

"Armistice Day" implies that this is an interval between wars. Should we not, then, consider it as a "Peace Day?" A day when we consider action for peace.

In considering how we may preserve peace for the living we will truly keep faith with the dead.

What's Behind Resignation Of Combines Commissioner?

If the people of Canada could be told the whole truth they would probably regard the resignation of J. F. McGregor as combines investigation commissioner as the most alarming news to come out of Ottawa in years. It is quite possible it may have more affect on the pocket book of each of us than the average Canadian now thinks.

Ever since the Prices Spreads inquiry shocked the man on the street, Mr. McGregor has been the outpost of protection for the little man against malpractice of big business. He has patiently and courageously taken on the largest corporations, who naturally wield tremendous influence, and that he has finally lost patience is a sign that things must be in a bad way indeed.

Evidence has been difficult to collect; convictions hard to get. But what was most discouraging was legal delaying tactics. If Mr. McGregor got a conviction in a lower court, the case was appealed, to the Privy Council if necessary. From the corporation's viewpoint all it had to do was win once and that ended it. Even if a Privy Council decision went against the corporation the practice complained of, resulting in the original charge, had either changed location or nature sufficiently that a new body of evidence and a new trial were necessary.

Meanwhile, with the case still before the courts, infringements of the Combines Investion Act could be carried on with impunity.

In a younger, more starry-eyed period of my life I earned the unrelenting enmity of a powerful group by trying to show up their chiselling tactics (brother, am I being polite!), and before I started Mr. McGregor said: "I wish you luck—but it is too big to break."

That was Mr. McGregor's constant problem: he was waging constant warfare against forces he knew were too big to break.

He, at least, had an Act behind him so that when he could point to infringements of that Act he was on solid ground before the court. As long as he did not go so far that he made his "friends at court" uneasy he could prevent the worst features of price-fixi and practices in restraint trade. The very fact the Act a a man who intended to administ it were there at all served to pe suade a few, at least to pretend, toe the line.

Let no one think the finger being pointed at all business. T Act was designed to protect, a Mr. McGregor was operating benefit, the average businessma even more than the consumer.

When Mr. McGregor says tha price fixing is more rampant no than ever, it may be taken fo granted that this is a polite nam for far greater business abuse than appear on the surface.

No government wants anothe enquiry similar to the Pric Spreads, which shook political lif to its foundation in Ottawa. N government wants a full airing o the behind-the-scene pressure which are brought to bear on AL governments.

Not everyone now agrees tha price fixing and cartels are i themselves bad. This undoubtedl is not the point in Mr. McGregor' case. While I know nothing what ever about the particular reason for his resignation, I do know Mr McGregor as one of the most hon est and courageous public servant Canada has had the fortune to em ploy, and that his resignation would not be a precipitate one be cause one decision went against him.

Until I learn more about the specific facts BEHIND his resignation, I'm going to be very suspicious. I'm going to be very suspicious that those who claim to pay the piper have let it be known they intend to call the tune.

Until, and unless, the whole story is told I'm going to be very hard to convince that I'm not paying high prices only for the privilege of "free" competition.

Those who talk most about free competition usually mean business free from competition, particularly, that their methods should be free from such watch dogs for the consumer and small businessman as J. F. McGregor.

Scriptural Meditations

By AINSLEY BLAIR

"Our growth in grace, our joy, our usefulness,—all depend upon our union with Christ. It is by communion with Him, daily, hourly,—by abiding in Him,—that we are to grow in grace. He is not only the author but the finisher of our faith. It is Christ first and last and always. He is to be with us, not only at the beginning and the end of our course, but at every step of the way. David says, 'I have set the Lord always before me: because He is at my right hand I shall not be moved'." Ps. 16:8.—"Steps to Christ."

Graded Road Ready For Gravel

BLUE JAY. — The farmers living on the road south of Blue Jay Store, after years of wallowing in the ruts and mudholes with wagons and then slowly fighting their way through with cars and trucks, sometimes pushing and sometimes reverting to horses to pull the cars and trucks through, have finally had it properly graded. One farmer has said that it is all ready for gravelling.

The residents along this road have asked me to express on their behalf, their sincere thanks to our M.L.A., Mr. Lobay.

Water Reservoir Nearing Completion

REDWATER.—Imperial Oil Co. is wasting no time in its project to supply their new townsite in Redwater with running water before winter sets in. The project, costing in the neighborhood of $30,000, consists of a large reservoir on an island on the North Saskatchewan river at the mouth of the Redwater creek and about 11 miles southeast of Redwater. The bottom of this large reservoir will be about 11 feet below the level of the river and the water seeps through many layers of sand, clay, gravel and coal before it finds its way to this reservoir. Except for probable final chlorination, the water is expected to be perfectly free of harmful bacteria.

A large pumping station will be built by the reservoir and from here it will be pumped directly to Redwater. The water will start off on its journey to Redwater through an eight-inch pipe for a distance of two miles, then finish the remaining distance in a six-inch pipe. The whole pipe line is laid eight feet under ground.

At intervals of two miles hydrants will be installed to supply water to Imperial batteries and drilling rigs.

In Redwater, waterworks are only to be installed in dwellings constructed by the Imperial il Co. for its employees. The rest of the town will not benefit from this project but company officials have promised to supply water to a skating rink at present under construction.

Successful R.H.S. Masquerade

RADWAY. — When the High School population put their heads together over a public social function the effects are stunning. Such was the October 31 masquerade dance held in Radway hall.

Jack-o-lantern lights, black and yellow streamers, countless balloons in strings and clusters, black cats and skeletons in various poses decorated the hall which quickly filled with a milling crowd. Equipped with novelty caps and noise makers, young and old created a din fit to raise the roof. And the "Million-Aires" orchestra from the city provided the music that set all feet a-dancing.

A large number wore costumes, gay, fantastic, artistic, grotesque. For best costumes the prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dubeta, Mrs. Dubeta attired as a colored gentleman and J.C. as the lady friend.

Mrs. H. Leonard baked and decorated the cake with a A.W.I. crest and the blue and white colors.

During the course of the evening the president, Mrs. L. Barry, presented the grandmothers present with a lovely corsage, made of bronze and gold baby 'mums. These lovely corsages were made up by Mrs. T. Barry.

The grandmothers had to give the number and names of their grandchildren, and received the corsages in order of number.

Mrs. Campbell had seven grandchildren (one set of twins).

Mrs. Harrild—six.

Mrs. L. Akins—four.

Mrs. Rossiter — two (eldest grandchildren).

Mrs. T. Atkinson—two.

Mrs. Belhumeur—two (youngest grandmother).

New Records

SANGUDO.—The Conrad family have new records to add to the town's archives. On Oct. 19, Mr. R. Conrad crossed the river on the ice. Then on Nov. 1, Lloyd went for a swim. True he didn't stay in for long but nevertheless he had a swim.

Scout Commissioner Gives Talk

WASKATENAU. — The Boy Scout Commissioner for Alberta, Mr. Halloway, gave an informative speech to the pupils of the school on the afternoon of Oct. 31 and in the evening the following parents attended a meeting at which the Scout Commissioner outlined the movement and its aims: George Repka, Mr. and Mrs. R. Elliott, W. Umrysh, Steve Esopenko, H. Goettel and M. Pihowich.

From this group Mrs. Elliott was chairman, George Repka and Mike Pilowich members of a sponsoring committee which started a Scout Troop at Waskatenau. Mr. Nekolaychuk, whose efforts were responsible for the Scout Commissioner's visit, was chosen Scout Master.

May Increase Price Of Coffee

WASKATENAU.—If you're a coffee addict, better lay in a big supply, as it is likely to be worth a dollar a pound. A big shortage in Brazil plus devaluation and you have the reason for this exorbitant price.

It is not so long ago that they were dumping coffee into the ocean to keep the price from going down too low. Could be using some of that coffee now; but then it doesn't seem to matter how high prices can go.

It's a queer situation.

Bridge Data Asked By Government

WASKATENAU — The committee appointed to obtain facts and figures for the presentation to the government requesting (demanding, might be a better word) a bridge across the siver, reports some progress. Our M.L.A. is heartily in accord with us and is getting the required figures on traffic handled by the ferry. Several petitions are in process of being made up to send to A.F.U. locals across the river at Delph, Leeshore and Skaro.

The Lamont Board of Trade is being contacted and the A.M.A. will also be asked for their backing.

We've got to work fast for reasons known only at present to the committee.

Lagasse-Brooks Wedding Oct. 27th

WATERWAYS — The St. Peter and Paul Church at Waterways, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on October 27th, when Darleen Ida Brooks, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Brooks, became the bride of Mr. Henry Legasse, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lagasse, of Westlock.

Rev. Father J. S. Lesage, O.M.I., pastor, performed the ceremony and gave the nuptial blessing, which was attended by a large audience.

The bride entering the church on the arm of her father, looked lovely in a floor-length classic gown of white satin, which featured a large lace yoke with high round neckline, and long sleeves and fitted bodice. The skirt was very full with lace inserts and a long train. Her veil was a finger-tip length, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty Roses and fern tied with a lovely bow of white satin.

Miss Lois Brooks, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a formal frock of peach satin with a full net over-skirt.

The train bearers were Miss Ethel Brooks, sister of the bride, and Miss Dorothy Bird, both charmingly gowned in matching floor-length frocks of peach satin.

The best man was Mr. Robert Brooks, cousin of the bride.

Mr. Ernest Meunier was organist and Mrs. G. Strandberg, soloist. During the signing of the register she sang with devotion Schubert's "Ave Maria."

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by their many friends.

A dance in the local haall followed in the evening.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Vancouver, Seattle and other cities on the Pacific Coast, after which they will take up residence at Waterways, where the groom is employed by the N. A. R., as assistant agent.

Shower for Bride-Elect, Darlene Brooks

McMURRAY — More than 40 women gathered on Saturday, October 22nd, at the Embleton Dining Room in Waterways, to attend a shower for Miss Darlene Brooks.

Mrs. T. Embleton was hostess, helped by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. S. Brooks.

The bride-to-be received many lovely and useful gifts after which a lunch was served.

Theatre Goers Make Capacity Crowd

HYLO. — Keehn's hall was nearly filled to capacity, although the roads were practically impassable with mud after Friday night's steady rain.

It was evident that the hilarious light comedy on that husband and wife life was enjoyed. The hall echoed with laughter. For a moment, too, everyone lived with Kit Madden in search of an actor for the leading role in "Here is Tomorrow."

Rev. Fr. Lesage Officiated

WATERWAYS—The wedding of Miss Darleen Brooks and Henry Lagasse, which took place October 27th, was held in the St. Peter and Paul Roman Catholic Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. J. S. Lesage.

WASKATENAU NEWS

The heating plant is being installed in Zadunayski's Garage and then the cement floor will be put in. Soon after that John will be able to move in and do business in one of the most modern garages in northern Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Lakoduck have retired from the farm and will reside in Waskatenau. Mr. Lakoduck was our first feed mill operator back in 1921.

"Bud" Fowler had his arm badly injured while cranking the tractor.

November 1—No snow on the ground—farmers still working on their land—the ferry still running—Really is Sunny Alberta.

Tom Evans is now working in Melnyk's Garage.

Drest Kosterewa has gone into business while attending school. He can sell a subscription to any magazine printed and we congratulate him for his ambition. That's what we like to see our young people like.

An accident involving Dave New, his tractor and a car from Manitoba, west of town, only caused extensive damage to the car front. No one was injured which is very fortnate.

A very large crowd attended the wedding dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Padlecki of Skaro and everyone had a wonderful time.

Hallowe'en has come and gone. Waskatenau's young teen-agers must be about the best behaved on this line, as there does not appear to be any destructive pranks seen. Of course every home had numerous visits from ghosts, etc., and had to "shell out" to the now familiar "tricks or treats."

Mr. and Mrs. John Corbett and Mr. Corbett's three sisters paid a surprise visit to Stan Fulks last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Fulks however were visiting at Tom Yurchaks, so Mr. Corbett drove there and Mrs. Yurchak served both Mr. and Mrs. Fulks and family and the Corbetts a very nice dinner.

Miss Margaret Fulks received first prize for a sample of Olli barley in the Junior Grain Club competition. The judge stated that had this been a good year she would have a sample suitable for the Royal Winter Fair. Orest Kasterawa and one of the Mulak boys also received prizes. More interest in this sphere of grain production would give encouragement to our young people. This district is perhaps one of the best in the province and it is only lack of interest that has kept us off the map and out of the public eye.

Miss Jane Kurylo, daughter of Harry Kurylo of Delph, was Queen of the Carnival at the Skara Fall Carnival on October 28 and 29. Her ticket sales were very high and she was the recipient of a gift for her work.

Frank Stals of Hollow Lake is having an auction sale and is retiring from farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Frank are back from a visit to Saskatchewan.

Clodford local of the Farmers Union are holding a meeting in the Co-Op hall at 8:30 p.m. on Nov. 7. Election of a delegate and other important matters to deal with.

TO VISIT SCOTLAND

Robert Forbes, one of the few remaining old timers of this district, has sold his farm to Mike Derewianka of Lushore. Mr. Forbes contemplates a trip back to Scotland for a visit to his boyhood localities and as far as he knows now will retire in this village.

The editor has been acquainted with Robert Forbes for nearly 30 years and it is nice to know that we will still be able to hear his witty remarks and see his pleasant smile in our midst.

TENDER ROMANCE

Little Terry Pihowich, aged five, has a tender spot in his heart for Elsie Caulson. He has already given her a ring, complete with her initial, and Elsie is wearing it on her finger. Terry finds time to call on Elsie almost every day too.

It's true he got the ring out of a box of cracker-jacks but he had to work hard to get the price of the cracker-jacks, what with all the competition there is in the bottle collecting business and the cost of living being what it is.

Hope this gives Elsie a chuckle or two as it has us.

New Mayor, Like First Mayor, Boosts Waskatenau

WASKATENAU. — Waskatenau's first mayor was Walter J. Boyd who now resides in Vancouver. Walter put everything he had into the business of running the affairs of the village, but found time to devote time to the support of various sport activities and make a success of running his hardware store.

Our mayor now is George Repka and we are fortunate that he, too, is putting a lot of effort into the village affairs. His support is even more than just giving the boys a few dollars—he plays with the ball team and plays to win. He's an ardent skip in curling and doesn't pass up the Board of Trade meetings.

NEW YORK — C.A.R.E. has announced it is extending its service of non-profit food parcels to the Soviet zone of Germany.

VIENNA — Russia is speeding up production of oil in East Austria. When an Austrian peace treaty is signed the fields are scheduled to be returned to their British and American owners.

WASHINGTON—Federal Trade Commission has dropped a wartime complaint of price discrimination against E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc. A charge of unfair trade practices in the sale of a chemical solvent was also involved.

Second Trial Brings Some New Evidence

Eighth Installment of "The Strangest Murder Case on Record"

All eventual evidence was not produced at the first Paris trail, but the outline of both Crown and defence evidence was well-defined.

In subsequent trials they simply diverged more, each side succeeding seemingly in putting more details into the picture, one of Paris in St. John during the first three days of August, the other of Paris being in Truro on those dates.

LIVED IN ST. JOHN

Although Paris was brought up in Truro, he had lived in St. John for quite a while and so was quite well known in both places. For some time proir to the murder he was a resident of St. John but had visited Truro on more than one occasion.

Paris said he was playing cards the night of Aug. 1 in Truro and had supper in the I.O.O.F. hall. On Aug. 2 he saw Police Officer Fraser and a creamery official who were looking for stolen milk cans. He left that night for St. John.

Stanley Nichols, who said he knew Paris well, said he bought gasoline from Paris on Aug. 2. The entry book by which he placed the date did not contain Paris' name but he pointed out the entry had been changed from four to five and he placed it as the Paris' purchase because there had been some doubt at th time whether he should get credit for four or five gallons.

PLAYED CARDS ON MURDER DATE

Stewart Fraser said he played cards with Paris on the night of both Aug. 1 and 2. Mr. and Mrs. John Bayard said they saw Paris in Truro on July 24 and on Aug. 1, 2 and 3, and Mrs. James Montis on Aug. 2 and 3.

Mrs. Margaret Mannuchuk who lived three houses away from Paris in Carleton—a suburb of St. John—said she knew he went away on July 23 and did not return until Aug. 4.

Chesley Ford lived in the same house as Paris. Their doors faced each other. Paris was not around on Aug. 1, 2 or 3. If Paris had been home he would certainly have known. He saw Paris at the station in St. John on July 23. Ford had turned in the alarm for the Cushing fire—which he placed a day ahead of Crown witnesses—and said it was the day before he had seen Paris back in St. John. He denied that Paris was with him at the fire.

Mrs. Laura Johnson, who the Crown asserted lived with John Paris, accused of murder on Aug. 2, as well as Mrs. Drucilla Hodges, a neighbor of Paris, said he was not at home the first three days of August.

(The judge remarked of this evidence that one witness who had seen him in St. John was worth 100 who had not).

IMPORTANT WITNESS

One of the most important witnesses for the defence was John W. Fraser, Chief of Police of Truro. He had a search on the "Island" for a stolen can of cream, he said. He talked to Paris, whom he had known for 11 years, during the search.

The gasoline theft of which Parsi had been convicted was stolen on July 31, said Chief Fraser, but he admitted Paris at the trial could not remember his movements on Aug. 1 and 2.

JURY DISAGREES

On Saturday, Oct. 1, after being out three hours and 35 minutes, the jury disagreed, seven being for conviction and five for acquittal.

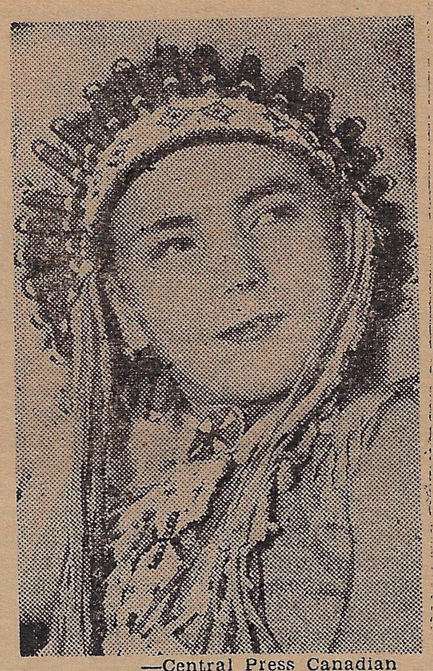
Deaths from TB

Sixteen people in Canada die from tuberculosis each day of the year. Although this figure represents a tremendous decrease from a few years ago, it is still far too high for a disease which, if discovered early, can almost always be cured. Chest X-rays locate TB germs before outward symptoms become apparent. Have one as soon as you can. If you suspect you have TB, go to a doctor at once. Delay may endanger your own life and the lives of your family.

Most Practical Way

Health authorities agree that pasteurization is the most practical, economical, simplest and surest way of getting pure, non-contaminated milk. Contrary to persistent rumors, pasteurization does not alter the taste or food value of the milk, nor does it make the product less digestible. Make sure the milk you buy is pasteurized. Don't expose your family to the risks of milk-borne infection. Pasteurized milk costs no more.

ALL DRESSED UP TO GO PLACES



—Central Press Canadian

Goodwill delegate to the king of the Maoris in New Zealand, 12-year-old David Smith of Hagersville, Ont., is decked out in Iroquois headdress to make the trip. David, who is going to visit an uncle in New Zealand, was appointed delegate by the Mohawk tribe of Oshweken and given a farewell ceremonial dance at the Burford plowing matches.

Thirty Goats To Cross Atlantic

With a two-unit goat milker and a herd of 30 British White and Nubian goats, Mrs. Stansby of Adderbury, near Banbury, England, is on her way to Victoria, B.C. Since her husband's death in 1946 Mrs. Stansby has been breeding high-class goats. Now she has left her 300-year-old home, taking with her her two daughters, her housekeeper, the goats, four dogs and her furniture.

The trip to Canada will cost over $6,000—which figure, incidentally, is also the valuation of the herd of 30 goats. Her daughter Anne will accompany the goats in their compartment, even sleeping with them, throughout the 6,000-mile Atlantic and prairie trek to Victoria.

Thirty lovely blue-trimmed woollen blanket coats have been provided to keep the herd cosy. The party will have the ship all to themselves.

ARMY REUNION IN ST. CATHARINES

—Central Press Canadian

It's reunion time for the Lincoln and Welland infantry regiment of the Niagara peninsula. Ex-"Linx and Winx" men from Canada and the U.S. are staging a get-together to reminisce about the regiment's World War II campaign which took it through France, Holland and Germany. An example the "enterprise" of the regiment is this tank, a gift from a B.C. armored regiment, which was "mailed home" from Germany. Wartime Commanders Maj. M. McCutcheon, Col. James Swayze and Maj. J. Dandy gather about their unique souvenir and retight a battle or two.

A Woodlot Can Be Profitable

The farm woodlot has proved over and over again to be a good investment, and wherever possible every farmer should have his own re-afforestation or conservation plan.

Most farmers have an area of rought or strong land that would produce more revenue as a woodlot, if properly cared for, than as rough pasture. It is on record that one farmer who followed good woodlot practice, and who kept records of everything removed, found that the land in bush was producing sufficient revenue to pay the rent of the farm.

In the management of a woodlot, it is important to observe one or two things. Cattle should not be allowed to graze in the bush, because they destroy the young growth which protects the roots of the trees from drying out. When cutting wood for fuel, it is advisable to remove all dead trees, and in order to find them when snow has fallen in winter, it is a good plan to mark their location during the summer. It is also good practice to remove undesirable species of trees, such as ironwood, which do not produce trunks satisfactory for making into lumber. The same applies to crooked and misshaped trees which occupy space that could be utilized for growing straight trees of good lumber varieties.

Open Empire Air College

In January the Royal Air Force will open a Flying College at Manby, Lincolnshire, which will be an amalgamation of the three existing R.A.F. Empire Schools — flying, air navigation and air armament. Commonwealth representation on instructing staff and for pupils taking the course will be retained.

Grants to Schools Of Social Work

OTTAWA. — The federal government is continuing its aid to Canadian schools of social work with a grant of $50,000 this year, the minister of national health and welfare, Hon. Paul Martin, stated here recently.

The money will be allotted on the basis of $1,000 to each of the seven schools operating last year and the remainder on the basis of enrolments of full-time students in the 1948-49 academic year. The specific amounts are: Maritime School of Social Work, Halifax, $2,400; Laval University, Quebec, $5,280; University of Montreal, $6,240; McGill University, $6,940; University of Toronto, $13,150; University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, $3,890; University of British Columbia, Vancouver, $12,100.

Because of the extra demands caused by the development of both public and private social welfare services, schools have not been able to meet the demand for trained social workers, Mr. Martin said. The federal government provided $100,000 in 1946-47 to finance scholarships and to obtain additional teaching staff. A grant of $50,000 was made in each of the following two years.

Enrolments in all the schools have increased, he pointed out, but the continuing shortage of trained personnel has led the government to make a further allocation this year.

Relics of a Vanished Race

British scientists may have solved one of the outstanding riddles of anthropology by establishing the true age of the Piltdown skull. This prehistoric human relic was found in Britain 40 years ago and gave rise to much speculation throughout the world.

It has a large brain pan of human character and had been estimated to be about half a million years old.

This theory was refuted recently by the head of the Natural History Department of the British Museum, Dr. Oakley. He was speaking to delegates at the conference of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. Two thousand scientists gathered at Newcastle for these meetings, among them being many experts from overseas.

Energy Foods

Cereals are primarily energy foods but they also contain in various amounts most of the basic nutrients. While grain cereals—those from which nothing is removed in processing—are higher in mineral and vitamin content than refined cereals. Some ready-to-serve cereals are in the whole grain class. Look for the "whole grain" label.
